2. Within hours of the nuisance call they were able to identify an individual and provide insight in to his motives, temperament and long history of nuisance calls to the Agency. They subsequently implemented a plan which successfully confirmed the individual as the nuisance caller, thus averting any immediate requirement to further heighten the security profile of the Agency or other government organizations.

3. This accomplishment was indicative of the outstanding effort all have come to appreciate from the Security Duty Office, and focuses on them as a credit to themselves, the Office of Security and the Central Intelligence Agency.
